Dear Sirs:

My compliments and support for your efforts to label trans fatty acids on all food products. I think the evidence connecting these fats with coronary artery disease is compelling and the public needs to know the quantity of trans fats in the products they are buying. I also believe that the food companies will become more conscious of their threats and possible loss of sales that they will process more foods without the trans fats. I am a label watcher and many companies now stay away from hydrogenated products and the food still tastes very good. I wish you success with this endeavor.
